

Governors Farley Round-Up: Rocky May Run, Says Too Early

HONOLULU (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York said Sunday it is too early to say whether he might run against President Kennedy in 1964. But he called for united support of the Kennedy administration now.

Rockefeller spoke up on the fringes of the 53rd conference of the nation's governors. The first news conference on the sidelines was given over to the New York executive.

Asked how he thinks Kennedy is doing domestically and internationally, Rockefeller replied: "Well, I think he's got a lot of problems. I think myself it is too early to judge or comment on any specific situations.

"The problems are so complex, so serious, they have such an effect on human dignity and liberty around the world, I feel all of us, regardless of party, should stand behind him to support the defense of freedom with whatever steps are necessary."

Rockefeller is regarded as a leading possibility in 1964 for the Republican presidential nomination.

First Meeting

Governors whirled through preliminaries of their first meeting in the newest state. They swing Monday into business sessions that won't be too crowded.

Gov. John Patterson of Alabama was looking for a chance to toss the "Freedom Riders" issue into the proceedings at some point.

Some governors were eyeing hopefully a proposal to ask the federal government to turn over five per cent of its income tax receipts to the states for improving schools. The chairman of the conference committee on federal-state relations, Gov. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho, said he thinks the conference might approve the idea.

Rockefeller said the matter will come before the conference Monday and he preferred not to prejudge it. But he remarked that it is the same approach the states get from school districts—that the states collect revenue and turn it back to the districts for school programs.

Pickets Protest

The Freedom Riders question accompanied Patterson from San Francisco to this crossroads of the Pacific. He flew the route with 10 other governors and their parties aboard a chartered jet Saturday.

Both at his takeoff in San Francisco and his arrival here, parading pickets protested his stand against Freedom Riders who rode buses into Alabama to try to rip down racial barriers at bus stations.

Patterson ignored the pickets and their waving signs. But he told a reporter: "If the opportunity arises at the conference, I'd like to make myself heard on the question of the federal government's encouraging people to come in and violate state laws, as the Freedom Riders have done."

Khru Says Soviets Nearing No. 1 Spot

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev declared Sunday that the Soviet Union is now the No. 2 country in the world and by 1970 it will have shoved the United States out of first place.

In a highly emotional speech to a Communist party rally in Alma Ata, capital of Kazakhstan, Khrushchev said the Soviet Union already has beaten Britain and France.

His voice was so highly raised and so charged with emotion that it was difficult for radio listeners in Moscow to understand him.

"We, the country which has existed for only 44 years, the country which was far behind Western countries, has come to occupy second place in the world," he said.

Left Behind

"England, mistress of the seas, England, which had Africa and Asia—we left them behind us. We left France behind us, too."

"Comrades! There is only America.

"And this country can be compared to a worn out runner. He had the prize—but others have been born, trained and are now running.

"The United States is now running on its past reputation but at the finish line the young, fresh, strong runner will break the tape and our Socialist country—strong, organized, mobilized—is snapping at the heels of America—not silently, but saying, 'Look, we are in the race. Hurry up or we will overtake you!'"

Khrushchev said American exports were reporting to President Kennedy that the Soviet Union would overtake the United States by 1970 and added: "This is our date."

Surpassing the United States in per capita production had been made the goal of the Soviet seven-year plan to be completed in 1965.

Fight Off T-H Order

Seamen To Ship Vital Supplies

NEW YORK (AP)—Three maritime unions—moving to head off a Taft-Hartley injunction to halt their strike—offered Sunday to resume moving critically needed supplies.

They asked President Kennedy to appoint an impartial board that would determine which cargoes were essential to the health, safety and security of the nation.

Ships carrying these supplies then would be worked by the striking seamen.

Kennedy Saturday began action toward invoking the Taft-Hartley law to halt the 10-day walkout. He asked Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg to survey the strike effects to determine if the nation's health or safety is in peril.

The President must decide such is the case before the machinery of the Taft-Hartley Act can be initiated to stop the strike for an 80-day cooling-off period.

No Reaction

There was no immediate reaction from the White House or the Labor Department on the unions' latest move. Kennedy had been expected to decide Monday whether to invoke the Taft-Hartley law.

The three unions making the proposal — National Maritime Union, Masters, Mates and Pilots, and the American Radio Association — represent about 50,000 of the 85,000 crewmen on strike.

Also involved in the walkout are the Seafarers International Union, the Marine Engineers and another radio union.

Under the proposal, the impartial board would work with Goldberg and the unions to provide clearance for essential food and other supplies. Military cargoes already are being cleared.

Passenger vessels would not be allowed to sail under the plan.

At the same time, the unions restated their position that the only way to end the walkout is through free collective bargaining.

Although the effects of the walkout have not been severe in most areas, the Hawaiian Islands reportedly to Kennedy that food is running out and sugar and pineapple exports are piling up.

Repairs Made To Section Of Bypass

SOUTHBOUND traffic on the Wind Gap bypass has been temporarily detoured to old Route 115 as minor repairs are made on the highway. The detour is expected to last for about one week.

A. Victor Cesare, state District Five engineer, said yesterday the road had a "slight dip" in one section and this is being corrected.

The Morrissey Construction firm, which built the bypass last year, knew of the condition during the winter but decided to allow it to settle until Summer to make the repairs.

Several concrete segments of the highway will be removed and a new section laid. The job should be finished by the end of the week, Cesare reported.

Twin Probes Underway

School Scandal In N. Y. C. Grows; Hundreds Named

NEW YORK (AP)—Collapsing ceilings, cracked and uneven floors, leaking roofs, peeling plaster, warped doors, unheated rooms, fire hazards.

These descriptions are not of a medieval prison.

Aired at a recent inquiry, they describe conditions in some of New York City's schools.

Why the buildings are like this is the subject of twin probes and a widening scandal.

One Board of Education supervisor already has been arrested and charged with accepting payoffs from 24 contracting firms.

32 Inspectors

Thirty-two school construction inspectors named by the city investigation commissioner remain on the city payroll under the most tenuous circumstances. Mayor Robert F. Wagner has ordered them suspended, but School Supt. John J. Theobald said he would keep them on for the time being, pending further information.

Fifty-three inspectors were called in by the district attorney's office and forced to sign waivers of immunity to prosecution as a prelude to putting the whole scandal before a grand jury.

A Board of Education member is being questioned about the selection of a school site that turned out to include property in which he had a financial interest.

In the borough of Queens, officials seized 40 sets of contractors' books allegedly showing large cash payments to public officials.

Twenty-six contractors have been barred from doing further business with the city.

The numbers increase almost daily.

Implications

Political implications also increase as New York City's mayoralty campaign approaches. The city administration is Democratic, the state is Republican.

And the investigation into alleged improprieties in school construction is being conducted by both the city Department of Investigation and the state investigation Commission. Each claims it started the probe on its own and that the other jumped on only afterward.

Whichever was first, both probes were known to be under way by early this year. Specifically, the two agencies were looking into:

1. Whether political considerations and possible kickbacks and payoffs have resulted in preferential treatment for certain companies doing business with the Board of Education.
2. Whether contractors, possibly acting in collusion with city employees, have short-changed the city on school jobs.
3. Whether administrative deficiencies and weaknesses have resulted in waste of building and repair funds.

All politics aside, both investigating bodies would seem to agree at this juncture that the answer to all three questions is "yes."

Plan Inquest In Death Of Vanderbilt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An inquest will be held in the death of George Vanderbilt III, newlywed millionaire sportsman who plunged from a 10th floor suite window in the Mark Hopkins Hotel Saturday night.

Deputy Coroner Karl C. Lytle said the inquest date would not be set until the circumstances have been investigated fully.

"The circumstances indicate suicide, but he left no notes and there were no witnesses," Lytle said. "It also could have been an accident. He could have become dizzy at the window."

The body of Vanderbilt, 47, was found about 7:15 p.m. on the Nob Hill crest of Mason Street, 150 feet below the suite where he and his wife were spending a San Francisco theater weekend.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, his fourth wife, told police her husband never had threatened suicide. But she said he had been worried over some apparent business difficulties and also was concerned over his schooner, the Pioneer.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who married the Vanderbilt scion at Scottsdale, Ariz., March 23, said her husband had returned to the suite after going out to buy theater tickets. She was drawing a bath.

"I heard him say, 'Can't you hear me, I've been calling you,'" Mrs. Vanderbilt said. "I told him that I'd heard him and went out to the sitting room."

She saw the window open and a breeze blowing the curtains in. Vanderbilt inherited $40 million from the railroad empire fortune of his great-great grandfather, Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Rayburn Hails Walter As A Great Congressman

LEHIGHTON, Pa. (AP)—House Speaker Sam Rayburn asserted Saturday night that Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., "has dug out more dens of disloyalty than any man who has ever lived in the United States."

"Let me point out that I have known more than 3,000 congressmen in the 48 years I have served in the House," Rayburn added for emphasis at a dinner honoring Walter. He is chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Walter, who has been a congressman for 29 years, reiterated that he will retire from Congress at the end of his present term because of ill health.

State Rep. John F. Bonner, D-Carson, also was honored at the dinner at the Mahoning Valley Country Club near here.

Speaker Rayburn's ringing words echoed across a hushed audience — suddenly awakened to the fact that the event—while a sentimental one for two outstanding political figures—had a much keener significance.

Rayburn opened his remarks with this statement:

"The people in Pennsylvania speak my language. I am gratified to be in a magic part of this great Commonwealth.

"I came here for a special reason. Naturally, I receive many invitations — from all parts of the country and it is difficult to refuse these pleasant letters. But, in accepting your invitation I had only one thing in mind: to pay tribute to a great American, perhaps a greater American than anyone has really come to appreciate.

"Let me point out that I have known more than 3,000 Congressmen in the 48 years I have served in the House.

"Every new man stands in judgment. That judgment is suspended until that man has had a fair trial in the House.

Best Jury in U.S.

"We have in the House of Representatives the best jury in the United States.

"Therefore, I say to you: I have known 'Tad' Walter intimately for nearly three decades. To me, he has been a great help, a great inspiration. He has high character, amazing ability.

"Tad' Walter commands the respect on both sides of the Congress—the Republicans and the Democrats.

"This speech I am making tonight is no partisan speech. I want you to know, I want America to know that 'Tad' Walter has dug out more dens of disloyalty than any man who has ever lived in the United States.

Rayburn closed his remarks with this tribute to Rep. Walter: "Tad' Walter has the best interests of democracy and civilization at heart.

"I am sadly grieved to hear that he is considering retiring from Congress. I hope he gets his health back. The United States has never before needed such men as they do Francis Walter today."

Rep. Walter, in his remarks, said:

Rush Job On School Bill Is Just 'Bunk'

HARRISBURG (AP)—The idea of rushing an educational program through the General Assembly in a short period "is all the bunk," House Speaker H. G. Andrews said Sunday.

"If there is one sector of the legislative front that doesn't call for pell mell action, it is the education front," he added.

Andrews' comments were contained in his periodic newsletter to House members.

The 84-year-old Johnstown Democrat has been an advocate of a go-slow approach to education. His latest discussion of the issue came on the eve of another joint meeting of the House and Senate special education committees.

The committees are trying to piece together an agreement on an education program for action by the legislature, using the recommendations developed in a year-long study by Gov. Lawrence's Committee on Education.

They have scheduled meetings Monday and Tuesday. Meantime, there is continuing pressure for a final adjournment of the 1961 session. Democratic leaders have set early or mid-July as a target date for the windup.

Cubans In Florida Plan New Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., said Sunday there have been reports of new military training of Cuban revolutionaries in Florida.

He said he had no knowledge of any U.S. cooperation in the training and indicated it was being done by Cubans themselves who want to topple the Communist-oriented regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Smathers, who expressed his views on a radio news show—Mutual-Reporters Roundup—did not enlarge on the Florida training or state where in Florida it was taking place.

He said he doubts there could be any new invasion of Cuba in the next six months or a year.

"I talked with three young men just this past week," Smathers said, "one of whom said he had been in the first invasion and escaped. They have large plans to reorganize the revolutionary forces. They claim there are any number of Cubans and other Latin American men who would like to make the attempt."

Iraq Claims Oil Fields In Kuwait

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—Premier Abdel Karim Kassem declared Sunday that the oil rich sheikdom of Kuwait is part of Iraqi territory and will be annexed to the homeland by peaceful means.

Kassem told a news conference the sheik of Kuwait will be appointed chief of administration of Kuwait by an Iraqi ordinance tomorrow.

He said Kuwait was historically part of Iraq.

The 5,000-square-mile territory on the shores of the Persian Gulf has been under British protection since 1899.

Sheik Sir Abdullah as-Salim as-Sabah has been receiving an estimated $3 million a day from a crude oil output which topped 68 million tons in 1959.

The American Gulf Oil Corp. and the British Petroleum Co. have been jointly engaged in exploiting Kuwait's oil resources.

Only last Monday, Britain announced a revision of the treaty with the sheik by which Kuwait's foreign affairs were returned to its own management.

Edward Heath, lord privy seal, told the British House of Commons in London last Monday, however, that Britain would continue to guarantee Kuwait against foreign aggression.

Heath said no British troops would be based in Kuwait under the treaty, however, and British defense against aggression would be contingent on Kuwait's asking for assistance.

Kuwait, one of the world's biggest oil producers, in practice has been conducting its own foreign relations for some time, using the British Foreign Office as a channel of communications.

Overseas Postage Hike Due Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Most of this country's overseas postage rates will go up next Saturday. The charges for domestic money orders and some special delivery service also will be hiked then.

An advance in c.o.d. fees is scheduled for Aug. 1.

Post office officials estimate that the increases, which the postmaster general is authorized to make by administrative order independent of Congress, will produce about $26.2 million additional revenue. An aide described this as a drop in the bucket in relation to the department's chronic deficit, which this year will run close to $90 million.

The estimates on new revenues are about $16 million on foreign mail, $5 million on money orders, $2.5 million on special delivery, and $2.7 million on c.o.d.

The main assault on the big deficit, in the form of a department proposal for broad advances in all domestic mail rates, which Congress regulates, ran into difficulty last week when the House Post Office Committee voted down the proposal. This would include changing the four-cent surface letter to five cents and the seven-cent airmail letter to eight cents.

Under the foreign mail changes, Mexico and Canada will continue to enjoy the U.S. domestic rates on first-class mail.

A new postal convention ratified earlier this year will slightly increase the rates on magazines going from the United States to Canada, while slight reduction will be made on books, advertising circulars, greeting cards, printed matter and sheet music.

Group Learns Of Break Up Of U.S. Unit

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. immigration official indicated Sunday the committee of prisoners from Cuba may have failed in its mission.

But information that the executive secretary of the defunct Tractors for Freedom Committee planned further talks with the prisoners arrived Saturday.

Louis T. Gidel, assistant district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the prisoners realized the Tractors for Freedom Committee had been dissolved and do not entertain any hope it may be revived.

He added that there is always the possibility the prisoners may be returned to Cuba. Gidel commented they had been admitted to the United States on a temporary parole, subject to revocation at any time.

Plan Talks

However, John Hooker, executive secretary of the tractors committee, told The Associated Press in a telephone conversation from Miami he planned to return to Key West to report to the prisoners on conversations he said he had with members of the committee.

Hooker talked with the prisoners here Saturday, then left for Miami.

Members of the tractors group are Eleanor Roosevelt, Dr. Milton Eisenhower and Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers. They announced last week the committee was disbanding because Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's rejection of the committee's latest offer "has made impossible a realization of our humanitarian goals."

Hooker said that after meeting with the prisoners again he would return to Miami to await word on what action, if any, the committee members may have decided to take.

He added that after conversations with committee members since Saturday's meeting with the prisoners, the committee "still can be considered dissolved."

Gidel said one of the subjects discussed with the prisoners was how long they should stay in the United States but that he was in no position to comment. Gidel indicated the delegation sent to explain Castro's position in the tractors-for-prisoners affair would remain in Key West at least one more night.

He denied reports the prisoners requested permission to tour of the country in a personal appeal to the American public.

'Explosion' Shakes Area; Is Mystery

AN EXPLOSION yesterday at 1:40 p.m. was heard by many residents of Monroe County. Efforts to determine the origin of the mysterious blast were unavailing.

The Daily Record contacted State Police, local police headquarters and fire companies in the area in an effort to locate the blast or find out its cause. Various points of contact reported: "We heard the blast but have had no calls requesting our services."

Several persons said they heard a jet airplane pass over and break the sound barrier, others said they thought the explosion centered on the ground. Many said it shook buildings. No one could or has come up with a definite direction or a lead to determine the location and cause of the noise.

Fire Levels Eastburg Home

FIRE caused by lightning destroyed a two and one-half story frame dwelling at Clark's Corners, near the Tom-X Ranch shortly after 6:40 p.m. Friday.

Forty-five members of the Marshalls Creek Volunteer Fire Dept. fought the blaze unsuccessfully.

Firemen said the blaze was discovered by the owner and occupant, Marvin Hassler, of East Stroudsburg RD 1.

Hassler was trapped on the second floor by the flames, but escaped through a window.

Damage to the two and one-half story frame house at Clark's corner, about three miles northeast of Marshalls Creek, was estimated at $15,000.

Only a few baskets of clothing and other possessions were saved.

Hassler discovered the blaze when he returned home from work at East Stroudsburg at 6:40 p.m.

The stairway caught fire after he went to the second floor to gather up clothing. Escaping through a window to a porch roof, he slid down a pole to the ground.

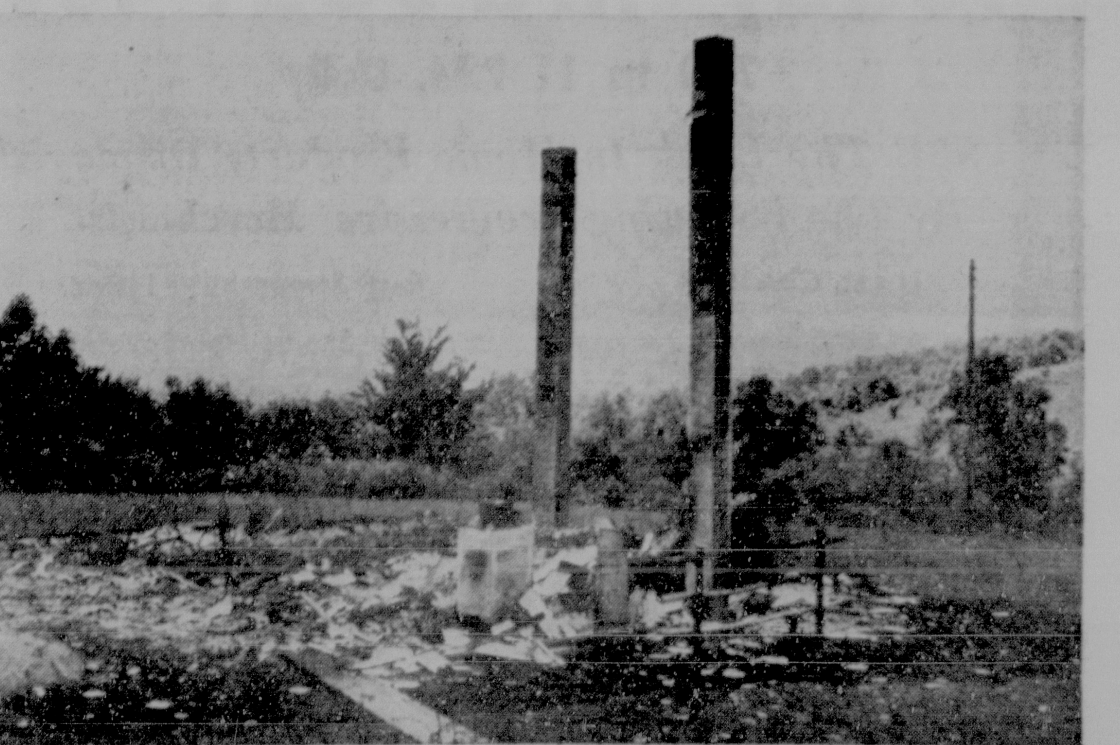

Telephones at Hassler's and at the Tom-X Ranch nearby were knocked out of service by the lightning. Hassler drove to the home of Jay Miller to report the blaze.

The fire had been burning for approximately 30 minutes before volunteers of the Marshalls Creek Fire Co. received the alarm. When they arrived, the house could not be saved. Firemen prevented the flames from spreading to a nearby barn.

Fire Chief Ralph Miller said Hassler's wife and their two children were at the home of her parents when the fire occurred.

Hassler is known for his luck. He is a former auto racer. During one race at Langhorne Speedway his car stalled on the track after an accident and more than 20 others piled up behind him. He walked away without a scratch.

REMAINS OF HOUSE—Two pillars are all that remain of the Marvin Hassler home after lightning struck Friday night. The lightning caused a fire that completely destroyed the home located at Clark's Corners, near th Tom-X Ranch at East Stroudsburg RD.

No Nausea For Patients

New Anesthetic In Use

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—A new general anesthetic, known as G-29 and reported to leave patients free of nausea or other effects has been used on more than 300 patients at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Its use is restricted to short-term operations.

Doctors say the drug, a milky odorless oil which will completely anesthetize a patient in 15 seconds, is especially valuable for children, but has been used successfully on patients of all ages. It is given in a single intravenous injection, usually in the arm. Doctors say the length of time the patient is out can be controlled with great precision by varying the amount of G-29 injected.

The drug's effect begins and ends so abruptly patients don't realize they have been anesthetized. If a patient is talking during the injection, he will go out in the middle of a sentence, then complete the sentence when he awakes.

The University of Michigan is one of two major medical centers in the United States known to be employing G-29. The other is Duke University.

The Michigan work is being coordinated by Dr. Gunter Corssen, assistant professor of anesthesiology. M. J. Thullier, a French chemist, developed G-29 and first tested it on laboratory animals.

Corssen will report on the drug at the American Medical Association's annual meeting in New York City, starting Sunday.

You will continue to dial Delaware Water Gap by dialing the 2 letters and 5 figures of the desired telephone number. On station-to-station calls outside of your flat rate calling area the method of dialing direct has changed. You will first dial 1 (one) to route the call to the Direct Distance Dialing equipment, then dial just as you do now.

When these new service arrangements go into effect under revised tariffs filed with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, June 28, adjustments will be made in monthly rates for customers in Bushkill, Cresco and Mount Pocono.

IMPORTANT!

Effective June 28, all customers in Stroudsburg and Delaware Water Gap must first dial 1 (one) on all calls outside the flat rate calling area to connect with the Direct Distance Dialing equipment.

Examples

For calls within the 717 Area—for example to Harrisburg—dial 1 (one); then the desired number. For calls outside the 717 Area—to San Francisco for example—dial 1 (one); then the San Francisco Area Code, 415; then the desired number.

Unifying Poconos

A further step toward unifying the Poconos, whose people already have a strong community of interests, will take place this week when the Bell Telephone Co. brings three outlying exchanges into the Stroudsburg calling area.

Effective Wednesday, the toll charge will be eliminated on calls between the Stroudsburg central office and Bushkill, Cresco and Mount Pocono, and on calls between Cresco and Mount Pocono.

The company will make up a part of the loss of revenue by instituting new rates for local service in Bushkill, Cresco and Mount Pocono, bringing them in line with the rates now charged in the Stroudsburg area.

The change follows a trend all over the country, with local calling areas being steadily enlarged and short-haul charges being either reduced or eliminated. This, we feel, is a significant stride forward in unifying the Greater Poconos and one that should benefit both the customers and the company.

Telephone service in the Poconos, Pennsylvania's largest resort area, continues to grow each year as it faces heavier demands. Not only must the facilities be available for handling mounting volumes of traffic, but the service itself must be responsive to the needs of this particular area.

By expanding the local calling area to encompass the four exchanges, Bell Telephone Co. is improving its service by making it available to more people. We believe the change will be readily acceptable to a large majority of the company's customers.

Is The Admiral For Real?

Adm. Hyman Rickover, USN, is a shocking fellow with the disconcerting habit of expressing opinions so much his own that he has even taken to copy-righting his speeches. This protection would be superfluous for the Admiral's recent testimony before the House Appropriations Committee.

It was pure Rickover—of the most acidulous vintage. We doubt that his brethren in the Pentagon will be tempted to plagiarize.

It is difficult to single out the most unsettling heresy uttered by the father of the nuclear submarine. His salvo aimed at officers "who are living in an age that has disappeared" was a fairly routine thrust. More stinging was his suggestion that Congress consider abolishing the service academies unless drastic steps are taken to bring their curriculums abreast of the times.

Worst of all, the admiral broke all the rules by declaring that he needed no more money for nuclear reactors—and indeed, might have a surplus to return to the Treasury. This must have sent more than a few swivel chairs into a spin.

Admiral Rickover has earned the right to speak bluntly. In his own role as a pioneer he has collided often enough with the suffocating parochialism of the Old Academy tie. Sometimes, in his wrathful vigilance—which extends from kindergarten classrooms to the dime-store toy-counter—he may swing a little wildly.

Certainly it is a truism that there is a built-in mental obsolescence in every officer corps; Gilbert and Sullivan adumbrated Rickover in satirizing the "very model of a modern Major-General" who could:

"... write a washing bill in
Babylonian cuneiform
And tell you every detail of Caractacus' uniform."

Nevertheless, if the Pentagon did not have a Rickover, terrible temper and all, the taxpayers would be right in insisting that one be invented. A little real brass in the Pentagon will do the Republic no harm. —Washington Post

George Sokolsky Says . . .

An Argument

The world is a - welter with great events and big men stalk the universe like fabled giants.

But every once in a while, someone picks a private fight which in principle is as significant as the battles of the great.

For when all is said and done, what concerns us most deeply is the freedom of man. Twice we have gone to war about that and while we have not altogether won our way, we also have not lost. We do survive in our peculiar manner and if some despair, there are enough who are hopeful.

This little private fight that I converse about here with deals with a machine that is used instead of postage stamps. Alongside the stamped part, there can be an advertisement of sorts.

The manufacturer of the machine does not sell this instrument but leases it; thus the proprietary interest remains with him, although it is difficult to see that he assumes any responsibility for what is said.

Thus, when the advertisement is used to encourage the sale of government bonds, no one can sue the manufacturer of the machine if the bonds go down.

However, the Post Office does not like the impression that it endorses certain advertisements, or so the manufacturers believe.

Along comes a textile manufacturer in Tennessee who wants to convince the American people that this is a republic not a democracy. He wants that stamped on all envelopes with a slogan thereon.

Personally, I cannot get excited about slogans on envelopes because I never look at envelopes. However, if a free man wants to do it, why stop him? Suppose he wants to say, "Hip, hip, hooray!" What then?

The manufacturer, however, views the matter differently. He says:

"The objections from the public to editorial postmark ads stems almost entirely from the fact that a great many people are under the misapprehension that they have been printed, sponsored, or authorized by the Government. This is not a question of opinion, but an established fact. This misapprehension can

This cannot be controversial because it is recited by children in schools, by their mothers in women's clubs, by their fathers in service clubs. It is a slogan for universal application.

However, the stamping machine manufacturer got out of it by this paragraph:

"At the present time, the policy which we follow in the furnishing of the advertising plates is being reviewed and modified. Temporarily, therefore, we are only furnishing plates which have to do with a specific commercial product or service."

I wonder what would happen if someone wanted a plate reading, "Our Father, Who art in Heaven," or maybe the Preamble to the Constitution or a stanza of the Beatitudes.

These can be very controversial subjects, particularly since the United States Supreme Court has ruled God out of Maryland which was founded so that men might worship God in the Catholic fashion as Pennsylvania was founded to give the Quakers a place where they might keep their silences without their ears clipped off for heresy.

In a statement, the meter manufacturer says:

"As a matter of policy, the Post Office never uses its cancellations for political or controversial propaganda of any kind. Experience has shown that any ads or slogans of this nature are considered by the public to be highly improper for use with meter stamps or in stamp cancellations."

It always astonishes me how various people know what ads or slogans the public likes or dislikes. That yardstick is hardly a measure of any kind, because the public does not speak up. If they did, it would be a sorry day for many. How many of the American people look at a slogan on an envelope and say:

"Forsooth, this is indeed controversial. Let us shoot the controversialists."

More likely, one tears the envelope and throws it away, gazing upon contents thereof with hope or misery. How seriously can one take himself in these hot days.

The Pennsylvania Story

GOP's Big Task

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — A former President and former Vice President on the menu — will it be sufficient fare to send Pennsylvania's Republican warriors across the victory line in next year's gubernatorial-legislative fray?

The occasion of course is the dinner gathering in nearby Hershey Park Ballroom this evening of Republican "greats", near-greats, would-be greats, also-rans and other lesser lights — sparked by the appearance of former President Eisenhower and former Vice President Nixon (for the benefit of those whose memory may have lapsed, both are Republicans!)

It's the first time the two men have appeared together since their ill-fated 1960 campaign when, it will be recalled, Mr. Nixon fought spiritedly for the presidential chair — only to lose it to one John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Mr. Eisenhower at the time, it should be noted for the record, was President and although not running for any office, gracefully laid aside his golf clubs as occasion demanded to give Mr. Kennedy the nod.

Upcoming next year is the all-important quadrennial governorship race. Will Republicans, suffering two successive defeats at the hands of once lackluster Democrats be able to swing the direction in 1962?

At this point it is extremely doubtful. Pennsylvania donkey riders over the past six and a half years have moved too quickly and too smartly to consolidate their gains. They are the ones who made it a point to become entrenched while Republicans fiddled.

Tonight's gathering of Republican greats is designed to offset this whopping big advantage to some degree. It's a shot toward 1962 and the gubernatorial race — plus increasing the Republican bloc in the Pennsylvania congressional delegation, as well as striving for a return to Republican control of the Legislature.

Under the circumstances all this is indeed quite ambitious. It's going to take much more than an Eisenhower-Nixon appearance to do the trick — but Republican strategists here are hoping the affair tonight will be a good start in that direction.

On the surface of course the affair has been billed as "an expression of appreciation and tribute to two great Americans" — but it goes far deeper than that. There's too much at stake.

The informal Eisenhower-Nixon buffet tonight may offer "tenderloin tips" and other choice edibles for GOP nibblers — but it's going to take decidedly more than a nibble to push Pennsylvania elephant-riders over the hump in 1962.

Pushes Moon Program

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — President Kennedy is going ahead with his crash program to put a man on the moon by 1967 despite potent opposition to the multi-billion dollar project in Congress and from several of the nation's top scientists.

He is serving notice of his strong determination to push the manned moon expedition by flatly rejecting demands by Representative Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., powerful chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, to abandon or scale down the spectacular lunar undertaking.

The 82-year-old Cannon, whose committee must vote an extra seven to nine billion dollars over the next five years for the moon project, challenged the wisdom of such lavish spending in an announced meeting at the White House.

In their private talks that were frank but cordial, Representative Cannon took the position that he couldn't support the moon project because it would be "a fantastic, foolish waste of money."

"This country shouldn't pour billions of dollars down the rat hole of space just to try to regain international prestige," Cannon told the President. "That prestige was lost for good when Russia put the first man in space. It can't be recaptured by spending billions more."

"I must disagree with you," replied the President. "No single space project will be more impressive to mankind or more important to the long-range exploration of space than landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to the earth."

"At nine billion dollars, that is a scientific luxury," said Cannon. "This project should be abandoned or scaled down drastically so that it will not divert our national effort from more urgent defense challenges here on earth."

More Defense Funds — "What do you think we should be doing that we aren't doing now?" inquired the President.

"We should be spending these billions on improving our military striking power to deter Russia from taking over the earth," replied Cannon. "It isn't going to do us any good to land on the moon if we let Khrushchev get a military advantage over us. I for one do not believe that he is bluffing when he says he will try to bury us."

"Neither do I!" responded the President. "I fully agree with you that we should improve our military posture. We are accelerating defense spending. But I also believe that it is vitally important to our security that the first man to land on the moon is from the United States not the Soviet Union."

The meeting ended with neither the President nor Cannon making a convert.

The President is now counting on the influence of House Democratic leaders to push his program through the Appropriations Committee despite the powerful opposition of Cannon, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., and House Majority Leader John McCormack, D-Mass., member of the House Space Committee, are enthusiastically backing the President.

Note: Dr. George B. Kistler, of Harvard University and science adviser to former President Eisenhower, is the most recent scientist to question the President's all-out effort to reach the moon. He has told members of the House Space Committee that he has "strong misgivings about the project."

Moon Car — Werner von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala., has the inside track to boss the new moon program.

According to White House aides, von Braun is being considered by the President to head up a special projects office in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to manage the lunar program.

The President is directing that the entire moon program be put under the command of one person. Also he is ordering the project to be given the nation's highest space priority.

News Flashes — The unidentified flying objects, that have been mysteriously appearing over the U.S. for years are going to be investigated by the House Space Committee. Rep. Overton Brooks, D-La., chairman, has designated Representative Joseph E. Karth, D-Minn., to make the investigation. The Air Force has consistently maintained that the unidentified flying objects (UFOs) are merely mistaken identification of familiar objects such as balloons, meteors, and jet planes. Just as consistently, a number of airline pilots have contended that the Air Force is mistaken.

Mayor Willy Brandt is pressing the State Department for the investment of U.S. private capital in West Berlin. He feels that U.S. assurances about defending that city would carry more weight if supported by substantial U.S. investment at this time. In recent years, there has been little private U.S. money being invested in the Berlin economy.

Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Research Subcommittee, in a memorandum to other members that "Despite favorable action by the President, the future of the Rover nuclear rocket project is still not secure." He contends, "There are a number of members on the President's Science Advisory committee that are opposing the project."

Inside You And Yours

Cold Feet

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Every hot puff turned Joe's feet into ice cubes.

His trouble? Thromboangiitis obliterans (TAO) — also called Buerger's disease!

Its victims usually smoke and shave. TAO rarely strikes women.

Inflammation erupts in larger arteries and veins—usually in the legs. Their lining roughens and blood hardens into clots to block each vessel forever.

Inflammation triggers spasm in normal arteries and blood slows to a trickle. Toes tingle and burn but feel ice-cold.

Joe bought arch supports because his foot and ankle hurt. But his doctor recognized the trouble when his trained fingertips couldn't feel any pulse on Joe's foot.

Arteries, veins clogged. Eventually, clots clog most arteries and veins. Short walks bring on sharp pain in the calf. But a few minutes' rest works like a soothing balm.

Sometimes, though, even rest won't relieve muscle cramps.

Then, go to bed. Raise the head part on blocks and gravity will help blood drain down into your legs.

Wear only well-fitted shoes. Loose rubbing breaks down fragile, blood-starved tissue.

Don't paint blisters with iodine or burning chemicals. And, please, no bathroom surgery! Let the surgeon do all cutting.

Keep legs comfortably warm at room temperature. Hot water bottles increase oxygen — need faster than they speed up blood flow. The net loss may be your foot!

Blood Vessels Relax. Heat your abdomen, chest and back. This warmth relaxes blood vessels in arms and legs.

Exercise! Raise the foot until it whitens, lower until it reddens; then rest it horizontally for a minute. Repeat.

Special tilting beds can do these exercises for you while you rest.

Follow your doctor's advice. He'll prescribe drugs, injections and perhaps an operation to relax large blood vessels in your legs.

Smoking is out; it tenses vessels. Medicines can prevent new clots from forming.

Legion Into History

Dear Mr. Editor:

On Sunday, June 25, the historically minded and particularly the "Custerphiles" observed the 85th Anniversary, to the day, of the "Battle of the Little Big Horn," as it is known to many, but more familiar to most people as "Custer's Last Stand."

They harkened back to that far away hot and dusty Sunday in Montana when the gallant, brave and fearless young "Boy General" of Civil War fame led his 7th Regiment of Cavalry, less than 800 sabers, to a rendezvous with destiny and death, a legion into that valhalla of immortality and undying glory.

For Custer knew and doubtless his men knew that their chances of surviving this battle, which was to be, in reality, the Indians' last stand, were slim.

Most people picture the Battle of the Little Big Horn as a little back yard skirmish, and I suppose it was by comparison to modern day battles and wars. Yet this was the greatest, most tremendous and enormous outpouring and gathering of Indians ever seen or known on this continent. It was truly the Indians' one great day, their day to be favored and smiled upon by "Wakan Tanka," "The Great Spirit."

For had not Sitting Bull prayed to and invoked the Wakan Tanka, and had a vision of many soldiers falling dead into their camps?

Stars never die. The proper perception makes them visible.

The road to stardom is not a single highway. It is composed of numerous winding paths . . . Aboard the USS Dragonette (in Guam during World War II) the crew was loading torpedoes. Suddenly the winch chain snapped. The wildly swinging iron slashed the air and a member of the crew was whipped unconscious. During the next four weeks he was paralyzed from the hips down. Miraculously, life seeped back into his limbs. After the war the GI Bill of Rights provided dramatic schooling.

And so, out of a war—and physical injury—came an actor who Made It . . . Tony Curtis.

Marlon Brando proclaimed: "People are not interested in message pictures, they say. I think a combination of both is possible and essential, particularly in the international exchange of ideas."

The first essential of an entertainer is to entertain. No performer is entertaining when he is standing on a soapbox.

Warriors numbered between 3,500 and 6,000. And against these Gen. Custer attacked with 800 after dividing his command into 3 parts to attack the village from 3 directions. Custer went to the north end hoping to come down through and catch the Indians from the rear, had Reno held his ground at the south end. But Reno did not do so.

So he retreated, then the preponderance of the Indian force left Reno, raced to the north end of the village and there Custer was surrounded by an overwhelming force of screaming, howling war-painted braves. He and his 225 men and officers were gradually forced back up through the ravine, onto the Hogback ridge, or Custer Ridge or hill as it is known today and there they sold their lives dearly and died to the last man.

The only living thing left on the field of carnage to survive was good old "Comanche." Captain Keogh's beloved charger who lived on to a ripe old age after being rescued by the remaining men of Custer's command, which were the troops of Reno and Benteen and they had failed to or claimed they could not go to Custer's support when they heard his troops volley fire, because the Indians were between them and help.

But suffice to say that Custer could not retreat and could not let the Indians escape or he would have been charged with cowardice and so even though this was the Indians' great day of Victory it was a hollow one, as the net result was that Custer saved the other troops who were to join him on or about the 26th of June 1876.

In addition he really broke the back of this greatest of Indian uprisings, as history shows that never again did the Indians attempt an uprising such as the one known as the "Battle of the Little Big Horn," Sunday, June 25, 1876.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

One way to keep from feeling sorry for yourself is to leave little time for brooding. However, it was not by intent that I found myself as one of the judges at a dog show on Saturday morning, guest at a wedding on Saturday afternoon, and a bon voyage party on Saturday night.

The dogs I loved but not the judging, since obviously each shining pet had already earned the blue ribbon in his owner's eyes, which lighted by love, were more far-sighted than mine.

And Barbara Wellington's wedding, like her gown, was a deceptively simple affair; no long train on her gown and a comparatively brief guest list, but both of them quite distinguished.

Although I still claim collusion in the pair who caught the bouquet and the garter. Incidentally, bridegrooms-ye-to-be might copy Lee Talmage's trick. Instead of throwing the garter, which somehow never throws, he shot it with a rubber band.

Feeling as if I, too, had been shot out of a rubber band I found myself a few hours later in Philadelphia at the bon voyage party for Nan given by Kay Shook Balaban and Tony. What made it really exciting was that it was their first own party, and it went as smoothly and expertly as if they'd been doing it for years.

And the wedding presents all looked as if they'd been designed for exactly where they were. One cute trick was the key they'd already planted in their college "beer" mugs.

It was a fabulous weekend all the way round—but I'll confess that if you're bound you're going to brood, you'll find time for it somehow if only when you're hiking for home on the turnpike. And of course the hardest part of homecoming is throwing out the wilting flowers that made it seem so festive when they were fresh.

Miss Barbara Wellington Bride Of L.V. Talmage

Miss Barbara Kienzel Wellington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Russell Wellington of 816 Scott St., Stroudsburg, was married on Saturday afternoon at 2 in the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg to Leon Vaughan Talmage of 808 Cricket Ave., Ardmore.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Talmage of Petersburg, Va.

Rev. John A. Bollier performed the ceremony with Numa Snyder as organist. Three bouquets of pink carnations and white gladioli formed the background for the wedding party.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported Swiss eyelet embroidery with a fitted bodice and floor-length bell skirt. White velvet ribbon was laced through the beading at the neckline and waist. Pink velvet ribbon laced the beading of the cape of eyelet embroidery which held her waist-length veil of imported french tulle. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses with a white orchid center and ivy.

Her maid of honor, Miss Phyllis M. App of Lansdowne, wore a street length dress of white organdy over pink with short sleeves, round neckline and a fitted bodice. The pink sash formed a loop in back, matching the pink bow which formed her veiled hat. Her bouquet was of pink carnations, white pompons and baby's breath.

Edward O. Talmage Jr. of Petersburg, Va., served as his brother's best man. Ushers were John Russell Wellington Jr., brother of the bride of Stroudsburg, and John Russell Wellington of Stroudsburg.

The bride's mother wore a yellow silk jacket dress with white accessories and a white corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore blue lace with a matching hat and a corsage of pink cymbidium.

A reception was held in the Regina Suite of the Penn-Stroud Hotel before Mr. and Mrs. Talmage left for a wedding trip to Nags Head, N.C.

For traveling, the bride wore a gray and white checked dachau suit with white accessories and a white corsage.

The bride is a graduate of East Stroudsburg State College and for the past three years has been teaching in the Lansdowne school system, serving as assistant principal at the Highland Ave. School the past year. She will not be teaching this year but has enrolled in the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Education.

Her husband is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and is chief electrical engineer for Deltron, Inc., in Northeast Philadelphia.

They will make their home at 808 Cricket Ave., Ardmore.

Mrs. Summer Bossler is chairman of this year's Book Fair. She has asked that anyone clearing out their book cases who may wish to contribute books call Mrs. Thomas Nabors, HA 1-6309 or Mrs. Ed Bollard HA 1-7140 for pick-up or deliver the books to the front porch of the J. L. Cohen home, 200 North Fifth St., Stroudsburg this week so that they may be sorted and priced before the Fair.

Miss Judith Robacker Bride Of George DeRenzis

Ferns and white gladioli banked the altar of St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, Stroudsburg for the mid-June wedding of Miss Judith Ann Robacker to George Richard DeRenzis, Saturday, June 17 at 11:30 a.m.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Robacker of Mountainhome, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length gown of white nylon net and Chantilly lace over satin. The skirt of net tiers fell from the strapless bodice. A Chantilly lace top bolero jacket featured three-quarter length sleeves and a Peter Pan collar. Her net overskirt carried appliques of Chantilly lace in the form of grape clusters.

Chantilly lace mitts and a string of graduated pearls, borrowed from her mother followed the theme. Her Juliet cap of sequins and seed pearls held the veil of imported French silk illusion, and she carried a cascade spray of white rosebuds.

Miss Giovann DeRenzis, sister of the bridegroom, wore a street length gown of mint green silk chiffon with short sleeves and a bouffant skirt. White accessories and white cascade spray of rose buds completed her costume.

Albert DeRenzis, brother of appointed directors.

Plans were made for a cake sale in July.

The next meeting will be held at Brodheadsville Oct. 11 with a covered dish supper.

the bridegroom, played a medley of wedding melodies before the double ring ceremony.

Joseph DeRenzis, Jr. served as his brother's best man.

Mrs. Robacker chose a powder blue dress of Chantilly lace fashioned with a full skirt and white accessories. Her corsage was made of pink carnations.

Mrs. Joseph DeRenzis, mother of the bridegroom chose a powder blue silk shantung dress with white accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, a private reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeRenzis, 812 Thomas Street. White streamers and wedding bells set the decor. The cake, three tiered, carried a miniature bride and groom on top.

Leaving for their honeymoon to New Jersey, the bride wore a white chiffon full skirted dress, scoop neckline lace top with puff bell sleeves and white accessories.

They will make their home in a trailer on Playhouse Lane, Mountainhome. Mr. DeRenzis attended Stroud Union High School, and now is working with his father, Joseph DeRenzis and Son, Stroudsburg.

Most women will agree, I think, that it's nice to have a man around the house. Widows, divorcees, and bachelor girls may feel they are completely self-sufficient, and sincerely agree that it's very pleasant indeed to come and go as one wishes, spend one's money as one desires without answering to another, dress and eat to please oneself, and become thoroughly, comfortably self-centered. But if they are honest, they must admit that, unless they are very skillful indeed, dozens of times each week they encounter aggravations that are quite beyond them, and with which a man can cope effortlessly and efficiently.

Anything the least bit mechanical throws me for a loss. When the window is warped and refuses to go up or down, I get impatient . . . angry . . . and my blood pressure soars. When the toaster doesn't work correctly; the electric fan doesn't fan, or the percolator doesn't perk, I am disconsolate and helpless. Even a faulty spring on a screen door can baffle me, and it is always a source of wonderment that a man can reach for a screw driver, a hammer, a bit of soap, or something of the sort, and solve these problems in a matter of minutes. More than once I have been pleasantly surprised at my son's abilities in the repair line, and, since he has no father at hand to instruct him, I am convinced that men are born with special skills only a few women can match.

Today in my mail I have received a most interesting paper-covered book, "How to Repair Small Appliances", published by Bobbs-Merrill. It retails at 2.50, and has 128 pages, plus many pictures showing the easy steps in repairing 15 items: toasters, shavers, irons, electric blankets, knife sharpeners, mixers, blenders, coffee makers, popcorn poppers, electric skillets, heating pads, fans, can openers, rotisseries, and electric motors. I have read excerpts and the author, Jack Darr, has certainly made everything simple and concise. I'm sure even I could repair something after reading how. But I shan't.

I shall give the book to my son. He'll enjoy it, I know, and I'm sure you would too — so just order a copy through our Wyckoff book department. Frankly, I don't really want to repair these things myself. I am a woman, and I consider it a woman's privilege to be very wise about some things and very stupid about others.

It's even more than a privilege. It's a duty . . . the first real obligation of being female. Repairing appliances, resetting door hinges, painting the bathroom, etc., is still, I think, the special field of the male . . . and far be it from me to chisel in on either his work or his glory.

Arriving at the radio station Friday morning, I was told, "There's a box of strawberries in the refrigerator for you. Some lady brought them in and her name is on the bag."

Strawberries and cream are my favorite summer dessert, and these berries are large, ruby-like, and delicious. The donor was my friend, Mrs. Blount, whom I met last November when I spoke before the Pocono Garden Club. A friendly, kindly woman, her recent hospital visit seems not to have impaired her activities at all. She was at the Tamiment fashion show Wednesday night, bubbling with enthusiasm, and making everyone feel good with her compliments. Now she's trying to fatten me up with berries and cream because she thinks I've lost too much weight too rapidly. There aren't enough people in this world who are so consistently kind . . . but we certainly appreciate those who are.

A lovely note about the Tamiment show arrives from still another Pocono Garden Club member whom I respect and admire, Mrs. Thomas McCool. One lesson I wish I might learn from her is the art of note writing—something about which I am very lax. A quick note is such a gracious gesture, and one our stationery department would certainly favor; but like most people I am a reluctant correspondent, and it is inexcusable.

How are you coming along with your June Jumbo Sale shopping? Bet you still haven't seen all the money saving values in every department! We've hundreds of them.

119 Children Taught To Swim At Y

By JACK CHAPMAN
YMCA Physical Director
A TOTAL of 119 boys and girls participated in a free learn-to-swim program from June 19 through 23 at the Monroe County YMCA. The children were between the ages of 8 and 12 years old and they were supposed to be non-swimmers. At the end of the five sessions, only nine of this group could not get their feet off the bottom. Progress is very rapid once a child learns this buoyancy in the water.

Some 120 boys and girls 5-6-7 years old have been participating in a program of instruction every Saturday for the past seven weeks. Children in this age group also progress very rapidly. Adjustment to the water is made by playing games. When they learn to feel at home in the water, they are soon swimmers. The percentage of swimmers in this group after seven weeks is also very high.

The YMCA summer program goes into effect today. The progressive swim program will be from 2 to 3:30 p.m. as follows: Today, Minnows; Tuesday, Fish; Wednesday, F. Fish; Thursday, Shark.

Recreation swimming will follow each day.

A special adult swimming program will start today. This will be an eight week course. Further information may be obtained by calling the Y.

The pool facilities will be open for everybody each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m.

It's A Sure Bet, Honey

Dear Abby: What future is there for a young man, 24, who loves to gamble? It started out to be a hobby, but now it is his full-time occupation. He has ideas that are out of this world when it comes to making a fortune gambling. He is good-looking, well-liked, and educated. He says he has studied the odds, and he gambles "scientifically," so he can never lose. He claims he has read extensively on "the psychology of gambling." So far he has been lucky. But do you think a girl can be happy with a man who makes his living this way?

Dear Girl: The "psychology of gambling" is not very complicated. It is the science of trying to get something for nothing. Don't bet on a gambler. You are a cinch to lose.

Dear Abby: Why does a mere wife think she has special privileges? Everyone knows "Till death do us part" is old-fashioned. If a wife can't hold her husband, why doesn't she get out?

I was married and had one child, aged 4. I fell in love with another man. We worked together. He was married in name only. His wife was older than he was. He married young and didn't know the score.

We planned to get divorces and marry. He wanted to wait. I did not, so I divorced my husband. My boy friend stalled. So I phoned his wife and let her know that I was in the picture. I wrote her letters telling her everything. I also parked outside her house, wanting to talk to her in person, but she ignored me. My boy friend started feeling sorry for his wife and told me to lay off. I refused. Then he finally gave me the old excuse about his wife being sickly, and his children needing him. My home is broken up because I believed his lies, so why should I give him up without a fight? I owe her nothing.

THE OTHER WOMAN

And your answer, Dear Abby, didn't sound like you. Tell me the truth, do you write your own column every day? Or were you on vacation?

JUVENILE DEPENDABILITY

We read so much about juvenile "delinquency" that we sometimes fail to observe an outstanding example of juvenile "dependability" that passes our door every day—the Little Merchant Newspaperboy.

He starts out as an average American youngster. But within a short time most Newspaperboys develop a sense of dependability much beyond average.

Under the skilled guidance of men interested in and trained to work with boys, the Newspaperboy actually goes into business for himself.

These experiences—offered only through Newspaper Route Management—help produce the kind of juvenile dependability that makes thousands of parents say with pride: "My son is a Newspaperboy."

To him service becomes something to give, rather than receive. Money becomes much more than a weekly allowance. Courtesy becomes an essential. And salesmanship becomes both challenging and rewarding.

PP&L Puts Power Plant In Operation

PENNSYLVANIA Power & Light Co.'s new Brunner Island Steam Electric Station was placed in regular interconnected operation in the company's system for 150,000 kilowatts of its 300,000 kilowatt rated capacity last Thursday.

Brunner Island Power Plant went into trial operation May 19 and has since been taking a "shake down cruise" leading up to the unit being considered as a regular part of the company's power producing system.

During this shake down period the equipment was tested and re-tested and the unit was operated at partial loads in order that the impurities in the boiler water could be eliminated. Full pressure and the full rated capacity of 300,000 kilowatts are expected to be attained in the near future. This will bring the utility's total generating capability to more than 1,700,000 kilowatts.

Brunner Island Power Plant occupies a 76-acre tract along the Susquehanna River adjacent to the village of York Haven. The plant represents an investment by PP&L of about $18 million, part of PP&L's gigantic post war expansion program which totals $88 million for the 20 year period ending in 1963.

The people of the U. S. and Canada spent $1,719,546,000 in 1960 for their daily and Sunday newspapers, an average of over $33 million per week . . . $143,296,000 per month.
